Planting Natives in a Suburban Yard

We offer suggestions for native plants that are thriving in a suburban yard and have not drawn negative attention from neighbors or the HOA; provide images of some of the wildlife attracted to these plants; and show what invasive plants to avoid/remove. Before our home was constructed five years ago the area was cattle pasture; by our second year on the property we were NWF certified.

Karen was a high school science teacher, environmental educator and teacher of teachers, writing the curriculum guide POW the Planning of Wetlands while Director of Education at Environmental Concern. David is a retired Professor of Biology at Belmont University and a founding member of the Tennessee Naturalist Program. Both are avid naturalists.

Doors open at 6:30 -- Everyone welcome!
