The Benefits of Trees and the Root Nashville Campaign

Meg Morgan, Root Nashville

Nashville is losing trees, but they provide so many varied and important benefits: not just in terms of environmental health and resilience, but from a public health perspective as well.

The citywide Root Nashville campaign, led by the Cumberland River Compact and Metro Nashville, is an effort to restore the city's canopy. Join us for a conversation about the benefits of trees, how the Root Nashville campaign operates, how you can be involved, and how the campaign makes species and planting selections.

Meg Morgan is the Root Nashville Campaign Manager at the Cumberland River Compact. Root Nashville is a public-private partnership led by the Cumberland River Compact and Metro Nashville to plant 500,000 trees by 2050. Meg manages campaign operations, community engagement, and communications.
