Planting for Pollinators

an in-depth guide to pollinator-friendly landscaping

Holly Taylor

Assistant State Naturalist

Why are native plants so crucial for the future of pollinators and the ecosystem? Let's explore this and other questions, as well as discover how easy it is to reverse the pollinator crisis in your own backyard.

Holly Taylor has been the Assistant State Naturalist for Tennessee State Parks since 2018. Prior to that she worked as a naturalist and interpretive ranger for state parks since 2006, and even spent a couple of years as a traveling wildlife presenter for the Natural History Educational Company of the Midsouth (now Animalogy). She is also the chapter coordinator for the Cumberland Mountain State Park chapter of the Tennessee Naturalist Program. She graduated from Tennessee Tech University with a bachelor's in Conservation Biology in 2009.

Zoom Meeting opens at 6:30
