

5th Annual Meeting

FRIDAY MARCH 31, SEWANEE TN

10-12:15 Symposium | 12:15-1:30 Lunch and Networking | 1:30-3:00 Shakerag Hollow Hike

This year's meeting will be at the Social Lodge at Sewanee: University of the South and will feature presentations about on-the-ground rare plant conservation projects. After a break for lunch and networking, Sewanee botanist, Dr. Jon Evans, will lead a guided hike at Shakerag Hollow.

There will be an option for in-person and virtual attendance. In-person seating is limited so please register at the links below.

In-Person Registration

Virtual Registration

Presentations Include:

- "Safeguarding and Reintroduction of the Whorled Sunflower", Anne Ballentine
- "Grassland Restoration at Little Cedar Mountain", Adam Dattilo, Tennessee Valley Authority
- "Oak Ridge Barrens: 35 Years of Conservation and Stewardship", Margaret Cumberland, Tennessee Citizens for Wilderness Planning
- "Conserving Dwindling Populations of the Western Wallflower", Holly Taylor, Tennessee State Parks
- "Conservation of Rare Marsh on the Cumberland Plateau", Zach Irick, Southeastern Grasslands Institute
- "Rare Species Highlights from the Seed Bank", Cooper Breeden, Southeastern Grasslands Institute
- "Conservation and Biogeography of the Southernmost Population of Pennsylvania Catchfly (Silene caroliniana ssp. pensylvanica)", Jeremy Stout, The Nature Center at Steele Creek Park
- "Report on the Reintroduction of the Running Glade Clover", Margie Hunter, Tennessee Naturalist Program
- "Why Volunteers?", Laura Hunt, Southeastern Grasslands Institute
- "Conservation Genomics of a Disjunct Prairie Plant: Clematis fremontii", Alaina Krakowiak
- "Managing for Plant Diversity in Old-Growth Forests of the South Cumberlands", Jon Evans, Sewanee
- "Establishing a Network of Support for Tennessee's Rare Plants", Dwayne Estes, Southeastern Grasslands Institute